

Amit Bhaduri is a former emeritus professor at Jawaharlal Nehru University (JNU).

Early life and education

Bhaduri completed his education at Presidency College, Calcutta, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Cambridge University, earning a Ph.D. in 1967.

Career

Bhaduri has worked as a scholar at Presidency College and the Institute of Management in Calcutta; the Delhi School of Economics and Jawaharlal Nehru University in New Delhi; the Centre for Development Studies in Trivandrum; El Colegio de México; Stanford University; the University of Vienna and University of Linz in Austria; the Norwegian University of Science and Technology; Bremen University in Germany; and the University of Bologna and University of Pavia in Italy.

In the Spring of 1997, Bhaduri was a Fellow at the Swedish Collegium for Advanced Study in Uppsala, Sweden.

Presently, Bhaduri holds the position of selected professor at Pavia University, Italy, while also serving as a visiting professor at the Council for Social Development in Delhi University. He spends part of the year teaching in Italy, with his primary residence in New Delhi.

Research

Bhaduri's has researched multiple subjects, including capital and growth theory, development economics, and Keynesian and Post-Keynesian macroeconomics.

Awards and recognition

2016: Leontief Award

Bibliography

The Economic Structure of Backward Agriculture (1982)

Macroeconomics: The Dynamics of Commodity Production (1986)

Unconventional Economic Essays (1992)

An Intelligent Person's Guide to Liberalisation (1996)

On the Border of Economic Theory and History (1999)

Development with Dignity (2006)

== References ==