

UNESCO's City of Gastronomy project is part of the wider Creative Cities Network. The Network was launched in 2004, and organizes member cities into seven creative fields: Crafts and Folk Art, Design, Film, Gastronomy, Literature, Media Arts, and Music.

Criteria for Cities of Gastronomy

To be approved as a City of Gastronomy, cities need to meet a number of criteria set by UNESCO:

Well-developed gastronomy that is characteristic of the urban centre and/or region;

Vibrant gastronomy community with numerous traditional restaurants and/or chefs;

Indigenous ingredients used in traditional cooking;

Local know-how, traditional culinary practices and methods of cooking that have survived industrial/technological advancement;

Traditional food markets and traditional food industry;

Tradition of hosting gastronomic festivals, awards, contests and other broadly-targeted means of recognition;

Respect for the environment and promotion of sustainable local products;

Nurturing of public appreciation, promotion of nutrition in educational institutions and inclusion of biodiversity conservation programmes in cooking schools curricula.

Cities submit bids to UNESCO to be designated, with a review every four years.
